NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Mrs. Bertha Muff, of 515 N.C. St., Louisiana, Mo., writes:

"Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my troubles public.

"For twelve years I had been suffering with the worst forms of female ills. During that time I had eleven different physicians without help. No tongue could tell what I suffered, and at times I hardly walked. About two years ago I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice. I followed it, and can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice restored health and strength. It is worth mountains of gold to suffering women."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Muff, it will do for other suffering women.

DESTRUCTION OF FLORIDA'S TIMBER LANDS

What the Ruthless Operator in Naval Stores is Doing Toward Waste of Florida's Most Important Resource, the Timber Lands.

The ruin of a state or the destruction of a world industry on account of their very magnitude seem remote. So writes George C. Calhoun in the Technical World Magazine for February. The average person can hardly conceive of either as possible in this age of scientific and commercial advance. But today, in the United States of America, both are not only possible but even imminent. Unless the forests of Florida can be preserved from the destruction which threatens them, a few years will see the state an arid waste and the great naval stores industry a thing of the past.

Comparatively, a short time ago the great bulk of Florida's natural resources was absolutely untouched, and among these, one of the most important was her virgin forests of pine, which covered the entire peninsula and constituted the repository of uncounted millions. Side by side two great industries developed in Florida—lumber and naval stores. Today they rank with the greatest branches of trade, but today hardly an acre of timber land in Florida remains untouched by the axe.

It is not, however, the lumberman who menaces the forests with destruction. While his ravages take away much of the picturesqueness and grandeur of the woods, they are not fatal, for only the largest trees are taken. The smaller ones are left until they have attained a size which makes them valuable for lumber. Land is only cut over at intervals of several years, and in the meanwhile the process of propagation continues, and the forests are preserved.

Unfortunately the naval stores operator is not constrained by the same necessity. No tree is too small to yield its quota of stores; large and small alike feel the stroke of the tapper's axe, and millions of pines are destroyed every year. At the present rate of consumption no very great time will elapse before the peninsula will be denuded of timber.

An account of the destruction which the work of the naval stores companies has caused, follows, well illustrated by photographs.

COUNSEL FOR THAW

MARTIN W. LITTLETON CELEBRATES 36th ANNIVERSARY—THE CAREER OF THE MAN WHO WILL WORK FOR LIBERTY OF DEFENDANT IN AMERICA'S MOST FAMOUS CASE.

Special to The Journal.
New York, Jan. 13.—Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel for Harry Thaw, is today receiving the earnest congratulations of his legal colleagues and friends upon having passed another milestone in his comparatively short but famous career. Littleton was born in a log cabin in Roane county, Tenn., Jan. 12, 1872, so that now he is only 36 years of age. His rapid rise to fame has been one of the most phenomenal among the legal lights of the country. He has gone up like a rocket, and there is nothing to indicate a descent. His fellow-attorneys look upon him as a fixed star in New York's legal firmament, and one whose brilliancy will constantly increase with years.

The chief counsel for Thaw is a self-educated man, having attended school only one term. He was a farmhand and a baker's assistant in his youth, and at the age of 16 became a track-walker in Texas. It was here that he was seized with the ambition to become a lawyer, and at 19 this self-educated boy was admitted to the bar. Down at Weatherford, Tex., the people are still talking of the excessive brightness of "Mart" Littleton. They are not surprised that he has become one of the greatest lawyers in the country. They would not be surprised at any greatness "Mart" may achieve, even to the presidency.

Invades Texas.
Littleton left the little town of Weatherford to embark on a greater career in Dallas. He was only 21 when he invaded the big Texas city, but the older lawyers and attorneys of the Dallas bar were soon forced to admit that the Weatherford "boy lawyer" was a smart youngster, and when he had shown his ability in a few important cases he cut a large niche for himself as one of the notable lawyers of the North Texas metropolis.

On Dec. 1, 1896, at the age of 24, the young lawyer married Maud Wilson in Dallas. Considering Dallas too small to afford full scope for his ability, Littleton had determined to establish himself in the nation's metropolis. Giving up his luxurious home in Texas, the bride of a few days set forth with Littleton for New York. The couple had little money, but Littleton was prime with ambition and his young wife abounding in faith. So, late in 1896, Littleton first set foot in New York—the great, careless, heartless city he had come to conquer.

And he did conquer. The task was not easy, but Littleton's spirit was indomitable. He did not wait for opportunities, he made them. The metropolitan lawyers, with blasé snuggles, at first sneered at the enthusiasm of the young Texan. But less than three years after his arrival in New York Littleton was made an assistant district attorney of Kings county, a position which many older and more experienced lawyers would have been glad to secure. While serving in this capacity in Brooklyn, Littleton prosecuted "Geirich" Miller by means of conducting many other famous cases.

New York is quick to recognize genius, so it was not long before Littleton had become famous as an orator and an after-dinner speaker. He combined the suave charm of a southern gentleman with the nervous alertness of the Yankee, and the combination was a pleasing one to his auditors.

It was in 1900 that Littleton became a national figure. Called upon to "fill the shoes" of a Brooklyn democrat meeting which had addressed by means of national fame, he became the orator of the evening. In 1904 the democrats of New York decided that Littleton was the one man to deliver the speech nominating Alton B. Parker for the presidency at the St. Louis convention, and if the enthusiasm he created among the delegates could have spread among the voters of the country, Parker would have been elected. In 1904 and 1905 Littleton was borough president of Brooklyn, and he makes his home in the big borough across the bridge.

He retired from public life two or three years ago in order that he might build up a private law practice, and in this he has been as successful as in all of his other endeavors. If he succeeds in securing the acquittal of Harry K. Thaw, pitched as he is, against the master of criminal prosecution, Jerome, he will have succeeded in his boyish ambition to "conquer" New York.

A SCHOOL OF FARMING

Indiana Farmers Take a Special Course in Agricultural Science.

Special to The Journal.
Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 13.—Hundreds of Hoosier farmers, many grizzled and gray, renewed their school days this morning and, rising with the trudge off to the halls of learning, where they will have a busy week of instruction in the modern arts of agriculture, stock raising, dairying, horticulture and housekeeping. The latter course is for the "women-folk" of the farm, and many of the fair sex are here with their husbands to gain knowledge in domestic economy. The short course in farming is being conducted by the experts of the Purdue University school of agriculture. The Indiana Corn Growers' Association and the Indiana Horticultural society will hold meetings and exhibitions during the week. The Purdue "short course in farming" is the best known of its kind in the country and every year attracts over a thousand farmers.

CANDIDATES ARE BUSY

Would-be Presidents, Their Secretaries, Their Press Bureaus, Managers and Near-Managers are Having Lots of Work—Photograph Galleries Enjoy Fine Graft.

A special to the New York Globe from Washington says:

These are busy days for the presidential candidates, their secretaries, their press bureaus and their managers and near-managers. Most of the candidates in evidence about Washington are frankly cognizant of the good old adage that, "The Lord helps those that help themselves," and are applying it.

The photograph galleries are quick to feel the effect of the active competition of presidential ambitions now in evidence. It would be hard to say which candidate is most prodigal in this regard. But, of course, the photograph is merely one of many expedients used. The heart-to-heart talk is a great thing. Most of the candidates who employ it with liberality and tact, give Fairbanks the credit for leading in this line of work. They used to say he was cold, but it is a mark of ignorance for one in Washington to talk that way now. He can inquire after the health of the wife without having warned up to him. Speaker Cannon is another master of the art of meeting folks. Knox is looked on by some as inclined to be cold and distant, but no man in the senate is more liked by the people with whom he is intimate. As for LaFollette, he knows the first name of half of Wisconsin.

Heart Troubles

The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. It often happens that a person is born with a weak heart. Then again disease, fevers, over-exertion, anxiety, nervousness, rheumatism, etc. weaken the heart. The result is shortness of breath, palpitation, pain in the heart, or in some of the nerves of the chest or abdomen. The heart should be strengthened with a tonic, and for this nothing equals Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

"I had LaGriffe last fall as I thought in a mild form. I was weak, tired, and short of breath; could hardly go about, and a good deal of the time sort of an asthmatic breathing, and extremely nervous. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine and now I feel so much better in every way. I am so thankful that I began taking this medicine, and shall not hesitate to tell others how much good it has done me."

consin, and is extending his acquaintance rapidly into neighboring states.

Of course, speeches have to be made and social functions cannot be neglected. Senator Knox is charged with having made a tactical error when he undertook to champion Ben Franklin as the originator of the federal constitution in opposition to the claims of Pelatiah Webster for that honor, as set forth by Mr. Hanna Taylor. The senator was challenged to a debate before the District of Columbia Bar association, but he saw this wouldn't make votes out in Nebraska and concluded to drop the subject. He is engaged now in getting through a new employers' liability law to replace the one the supreme court knocked out. This promises to be more fruitful of presidential support.

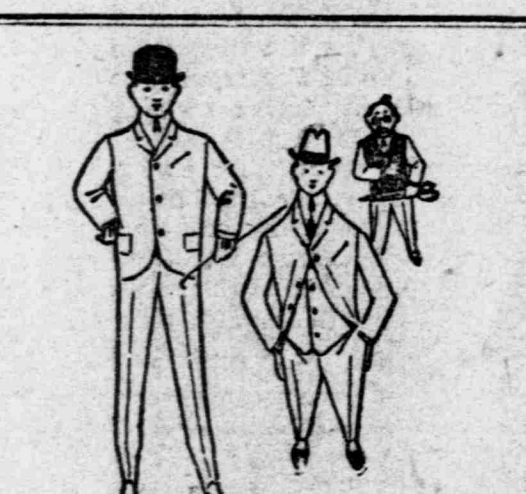

Vice-President Fairbanks is gaining fame for making speeches that every body can approve. "Uncle Joe" is widely wanted for his homely, one-galush talk, and LaFollette could spend all his time speaking if he would devote himself to assailing the senate. Secretary Taft has so many requests for speeches that he cannot fill half of them and his friends say he is gaining support by reason of the fact that he is telling the public plainly what his views are on things the country wants to know about.
